Recount stories, including fables and folktales from diverse cultures, and determine their central message, lesson, or moral.

Why Wind and Water Fight

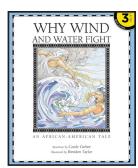

Read Why Wind and Water Fight with your students, then lead them in a discussion about the central message, lesson or moral of the story. Use the questions below as a springboard for discussion.

- How did Wind and Water treat each other before they had grandchildren?
- What happened to their relationship when they had grandchildren?
- How did they change?
- How would you describe their relationship now?
- What is the central message of this tale?

Read How Rivers Began with your students, then lead them in a discussion about the central message, lesson or moral of the story. Use the questions below as a springboard for discussion.

- Why did the people want the water above the mountain?
- Why did the water want to be free?
- Why did the Great Keeper of the Waters want the water to stay under the mountain?
- What is the central message of this folktale?

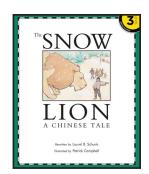

How Rivers Began

A Mavan Folktale

The Snow Lion

Read The Snow Lion with your students, then lead them in a discussion about the central message, lesson or moral of the story. Use the questions below as a springboard for discussion.

- What was the problem with the snow lion?
- What did Mei do to save the village from the snow lion?
- What did Fu learn?
- What is the central message of this tale?

The Story of Tong and Mai Nhia

Read The Story of Tong and Mai Nhia with your students, then lead them in a discussion about the central message, lesson or moral of the story. Use the questions below as a springboard for discussion.

