

Tell a story or recount an experience with appropriate facts and relevant, descriptive details, speaking audibly in coherent sentences.

Tell A Story Activity

Use the ideas below as a springboard to help students tell a story or recount an experience with appropriate facts and relevant, descriptive details, speaking in complete sentences.

1. Have students tell about their favorite pair of shoes or a pair that they would like to make for themselves.
2. Have students choose their favorite season and tell about what they like to do during that time.
3. Have students tell about their favorite holidays and traditions.
4. Have students brainstorm how they use their five senses every day to help them get ready for school.
5. Have students choose one of the five senses to tell about. Have them describe what the sense is, how it helps them, and what life might be like without it.
6. Have the children think and tell about ways to protect their planet. Possible subjects for this assignment are recycling, planting new trees, composting, and picking up litter.
7. Write a class play about the solar system. Divide the class into ten groups and have each group research a planet or the sun and write a brief description. Put each part into a play and have several students act it out.
